WEDNESDAY, MARCH 30, 1910.

Entered at the post office at Barre as second-class matter.

Published every week-day afternoon. Subscriptions: One year, $3.00; one month, 25 cents; single copy, 1 cent.

The stories about Jeffries' broken arm sound like the Yale howl before the Harvard game—hollow.

Reluctantly or not, the Vermont state press will confer the L. D. on Marshall J. Haggood of Peru—master of letters, so interpreted.

In Egypt, Roosevelt didn't do as the Egyptians do—keep quiet. Therefore, the trouble which he finds himself in at the present time.

When Montpelier's only theatre is dismantled next month, why there are two steam railroads and one electric line to the Barre opera house.

They are building hotels daily in Burlington. To-day it's a six-story structure by the Woodburys. Yesterday it was a seven-story hotel by Max Powell et al.

It will be a poor substitution if the governor of Virginia should appoint Thomas Fortune Ryan a United States senator in case Senator Daniel should die. Senator Daniel is a strong man, T. Fortune Ryan is a rich man.

When a man has been sick as long as Justice W. H. Moody of the United States supreme court and with so poor prospects of getting out before next fall, it seems to be the proper thing for him to resign and let a well man be appointed to the bench. His sickness and the death of Justice Brewer are handicapping the court considerably.

Conger, who made the charges against Allds in the New York Senate, is himself faced with an accusation. With so much jury trial on the part of the senators, one naturally wonders how important legislation is getting along; but legislation can wait, if the Senate is able to purge itself of corruption. The resignation of Allds and his subsequent disgrace by vote of his colleagues is an important step in that cleansing process. It does not make the New York assembly stand forth like a good dead in a naughty world; but the public humiliation of Allds shows that the Senate retains a measure of self-respect.

The Rutland News, too, thinks that campaign expenses ought to be published. Perhaps this latest announcement means that Mead is getting ready to accept the Haggood proposal. The News says:

"There appears to be no cogent reason why the candidates for nomination for governor and the various other state officers should not file and make public, prior to the nominating convention, a detailed statement of the money they have expended in their canvass. In other states there are laws requiring such publicity. In Vermont it would be a very commendable act on the part of all the contestants to volunteer such publicity. The people are really entitled to the information, but they should have it before, and not after, the nominating conventions."

Both the Rutland newspapers are now lined up in favor of the Haggood idea, against which Mead recently stated his dissatisfaction. They are certainly paving the way for a graceful retreat by their gubernatorial candidates on this point at issue; and if Mead does not accept the opening he will be a foolish man.

THOSE DELAYED APPOINTMENTS.

License commissioners have been appointed in the towns of Benson and Mount Tabor two weeks after the law says commissioners shall be appointed. Somebody really value an interesting question to know whether Benson and Mount Tabor really have license commissioners or whether the delay by the assistant judges nullifies the appointments.

It has been generally believed that the failure to name the commissioners within the sixteen days from the time of the election would not make a no-license town out of a town whose voters had voted for license; but, so far as recalled at the present time, there has been no judicial decision on the point, and the general belief has been based purely on individual opinions. For the purpose of testing the matter, it would be reasonable to bring quo warranta proceedings against the commissioners in Benson and Mount Tabor and thresh out the matter in the Vermont supreme court. If it is possible for two warring assistant judges to hold up a whole county, as in the present instance in Rutland county, then the state will take prompt steps to remove the likelihood of a repetition of the occurrence. If the state should not see fit to remove the appointing power from the assistant judges, then it might go a little further and give authority to the presiding judge of the present county court, or, in case court is not sitting, to the presiding judge of the next previous county court, to break any deadlock which might be occasioned through the inability of two to get together. For its part, The Times believes that the appointing power should be brought down nearer to local conditions than is permissible under the present arrangement.

on the head or on the ribs. If this does not fully resuscitate him, kick him violently in the stomach. This treatment will restore him if persistently adhered to.

If a man finds his load too heavy, and feels that it will seriously strain him to proceed, kick off a fence board and knock him down and then hammer him thoroughly. This will give him renewed energy and he will make no more fuss. But do not on any account reduce his load.

If a man refuses to drink when you give him water, do not give him any water for two days. This will "teach him" to be thirsty at any time you find it convenient to attend to him. It is a good plan to ply the whip frequently on a man who is at work. No matter if he is doing his best, hit him now and then on "general principles" and to prevent him taking any comfort. If his load is not heavy, oblige him to go much faster to make up for it.

Tie your man's head back in an unnatural position with his eyes toward the sun. This will give him a "fine appearance" and prevent stumbling.—By a Horse in Montpelier Journal.

Hamlet's Soliloquy.
(With apologies to William Shakespeare)
To smoke or not to smoke—that is the question:
Whether it is the more manly to give up
The weed and cease acquaintance with my Lady
Nicotine, or to assume with brazen air
The manners of a worldly man, and defy
The laws of health and women's veiled disgust?
To quit smoking—yes, if by that means we gain
Our heart's desire, then, 'tis a consummation
Devoutly to be wished.

August McLeod came back from Montreal last week. He tells us that the X-ray, as applied to his eye in Montreal, discovered a small bit of steel in the eye-ball, that has been there for years, he thinks. The X-ray had been applied before going to Montreal, but had failed to show up this steel. He expects that both the internal cataract and the steel will be removed at the Victoria hospital there, a little later.

J. B. Brockway is having his first visit with his grandson, Frank A. Brockway of Orono, Wisconsin. This young man is a son of the late Mark Brockway, who is well remembered here. He is an electrician in the naval service of the United States and will soon go to one of Uncle Sam's big battleships. He tells us of having sent a wireless message 3,000 miles, at one time.

A young Spanish workman in one of our granite sheds surprised us the other evening by saying that "a brother of King Alfonso of Spain had lately come here to work." In due time he explained that the mother of this newcomer had the honor of being a "wet nurse" to the king in his royal infancy in Spain. This young man is said to be a fine blacksmith and to have, in addition to the great honor conferred upon his mother, a small pension as her son.

Since writing of the item of the death of Mrs. Judge Harmon of Toledo, Ohio, found elsewhere in this column, we have been shown a very pleasant letter from her, written upon reading the Barre Daily Times of last October 20, containing a notice of the death of her husband. In this letter she speaks of how she yet called it "home." Dear to her were the old hills in all their ruggedness, and it was sweet to be remembered by any of her old Vermont friends—genuine Yankee, that was glad to call herself.

As a local correspondent, we had occasion last year to revive the memory of Electa Foster, who was prominent in musical circles here years ago and who afterwards married O. H. Watson of West Topsham, where she lived some years. A daughter of Mrs. Watson, Lucy C., became the widow of the late Judge Gilbert Harmon of Toledo, Ohio, who died there last August and of whom we wrote at the time. Word comes now of the death of Mrs. Harmon, the final result of a stroke of paralysis last February. A Toledo paper, speaking of Mrs. Harmon, says "no woman in that city has been more closely identified with the city's educational and philanthropic work than she." She was born in West Topsham in 1846 and married Judge Harmon in 1870. Three children survive her. One daughter is in the university of Munich, Bavaria, and another daughter is in the university of Michigan. Her only son is in the U. S. lake survey at Detroit. Mrs. Harmon had many friends here in Vermont, to mourn her death now.

Grange Adopts Resolutions for National Health Bureau.

The members of Calais grange, No. 287, at their last meeting adopted the following resolutions:

Resolved, That the resolutions favoring the immediate establishment of a national health bureau, adopted by the national grange and approved by the state granges, are hereby endorsed; and

Resolved, That we desire the necessary legislation providing for the establishment of a national health bureau be enacted at this session of Congress, and that our congressman and United States senators should use all their influence to that end; and

Resolved, That copies of these resolutions, duly signed and sealed with the seal of the grange, be sent to our congressman and the United States senators for this state and to the local newspapers for publication.
